3 2 2

This 1920s-built character home has been loved by one family for almost 60 years and we now proudly present it to the market for sale.

Most of this sturdy home is very much original and is complemented by the traditional elements you would expect to find in a house of the Art Deco period, including elevated ceilings and timber flooring, and lavish decorative glass features. Outside there is a wonderfully large yard, a garage and carport, side access and fencing on the three interior sides in addition to the distinctive front fence.

The original title on the house is dated 1924 and the Bungalow style construction which characterizes much east coast Australian domestic architecture of the 1920s and 30s, is typified in Queensland by hard weatherboard exteriors with jointed pine interior walls and wide pine floorboards.

The front porch, which was originally open, is now enclosed
